What does skydiving feel like: When you do your first skydive the feeling will be completely different to what you were expecting. In freefall, the feeling is similar to the floating sensation you have in a swimming pool. Some customers are scared that there are similarities with sensation of going over the edge on a roller-coaster. This is not the case. Skydiving is an exciting and exhilarating experience and one you will not regret.

How safe is Skydiving: Skydive Hibaldstow adhere to a strict set of safety practices. Skydiving has far less injuries proportionally compared to other adventure sports such as skiing, snowboarding, white water rafting, rock climbing, etc.

To give you an idea of how safe parachuting actually is, here are a few points:

- They are affiliated to the British Parachute Association (BPA), the most safety conscious skydiving association in the world.
- Their Chief Instructor (CI) is also an Examiner and helps to develop new standards in safety and the progression of the sport.
- Every person who jumps on one of their skydiving courses is equipped with a main and reserve parachute, helmet and fully automatic opening device.
- Regular checks and maintenance servicing of our parachuting equipment by a qualified BPA rigger.
- 4 Levels of checks before you make each parachute jump – when the parachute is packed, when the flyer puts it on, a check from the instructor on the ground and another check before they leave the aircraft.

What if my parachute doesn't open: This is a very commonly asked question. Answering this is simple, parachutes are designed to open, however if the main parachute does not open fully or correctly, there is a secondary reserve parachute which acts as a backup and your instructor would carry out these emergency procedures. The reserve parachute is packed by our rigger who is a specialist and is certified to do so. In addition, there is also an Automatic Activation Device (AAD) which will open your reserve parachute at a lower altitude. AAD's are there as backup to the fully qualified instructor

What happens if the weather is bad: Skydiving is a weather dependent sport and we cannot guarantee that conditions will be suitable for parachuting every day. On some occasions rain, heavy low cloud or strong winds can prohibit jumping. If you are unable to skydive then we will re-arrange it for a mutually convenient date and we will arrange an alternative date within 12 months from your first visit.

T&C's: Refund policy: All deposits paid are non-refundable. This does not affect your statutory rights.

Do I need to bring anything else with me: There may be opportunities to buy merchandise and food on the day of the event so you may want to bring along some cash/card. Finally, your sense of adventure!!! Doing a skydive is an amazing experience and a challenge and we thank you for doing this to raise funds for The Kirkwood.
